“People leave traces of themselves where they feel most comfortable, most worthwhile.”

- Haruki Murakami

Dear Alumni,

This newsletter edition is dedicated to the thriving alumni community of IIM Indore.

Every November, Alumni Committee and Alumni Activities Office celebrates its biggest event – Footprints - the Grand Annual Alumni Homecoming – to welcome the alumni community, especially the past year’s graduates, back to their alma mater. This year’s tagline was TraceYourRoutes. We had an entire weekend of fun, great food, live music, a treasure hunt, tree-plantation and above all, learning from the entrepreneurs among our alumni.

We were delighted to welcome alumni from recent batches as well as alumni from the PGP 2002 Batch for a 20-year reunion. This annual event allows our cherished alumni to reconnect and relive their campus memories with their loved ones.

The Footprints is getting bigger and better with time. This year we had over 250 alumni participating in events. We look forward to seeing more alumni visiting the campus in the coming reunion events.

In this newsletter edition, we bring the announcement regarding the new Chairman of the Institute, our ranking positions, social and cultural events on the campus, new tie-ups and the latest happenings from the campus.

Under our ongoing Alumni Talk Series Wisdom (प्रज्ञा), we had Mr. Vivek Bajaj, alumni of PGP 2003-05 batch, who delivered an insightful talk on How to Build Your Personal Digital Brand to Benefit Your Business! He emphasized how Personal digital branding is an important career development intervention in today's highly competitive work environment, where we seek to have an impact, use our abilities, and pursue our goals.

He spoke on how your personal brand will not only enable you to get new clients but it will also help you grow your business in a way that you will actually appreciate. Developing a personal brand takes time and effort, but the benefits are well worth it.

How did your entrepreneurial journey start?

I have 10 years of corporate work-ex before I jumped into the entrepreneurial world. My Entrepreneurial journey started in 2019. I have built software solutions (bookinfra.com) to improve the transparency and security for Online Government Examinations.

unHR was co-founded with Dishu Jain in February this year and we have seen 100% QoQ growth. We currently help more than 80+ Startups including many Shark Tank Season 1 startups in managing their daily HR Operations.

Briefly describe your business and why you chose this particular field?

unHR provides expert, continuous & affordable HR Advisory and support to early stage startups and small businesses. We create customized scalable HR frameworks for these fast growing startups and then run it for them at a fraction of the price of a full time HR Manager.

The business model is just like a CA firm that manages Financial & Audit compliances for multiple companies. In our case, we manage end-to-end HR Operations for many early stage startups.

Dishu and I always saw early stage startup founders struggle to hire, retain and grow talent. After primary research we found that one of the major failures of early stage startups is lack of basic HR practices which makes it difficult for them to grow or make costly mistakes.

What were the major challenges you faced in starting your business?

The biggest challenge is to make expert HR advisory affordable for startups. This involves making operations highly efficient, reliable.

The second challenge is that founders don't realize the need for an expert HR till it is late. Many founders we interviewed rue about not hiring HR professionals earlier. We plan to increase the awareness about hiring HRs during early stages of the business.

Did you go for external funding for your start-up/ firm? What factors helped you to secure such funding?

We are a profitable and bootstrapped growing venture. In order to accelerate, we are in the process of raising funds. We have already received soft commitments and are looking to close the fund raise by December 2022.

What would be your advice for an MBA who is considering a startup?

My only advice to MBA students or passouts is that do not create a startup just because entrepreneurship is shown as glamorous and seems like it is in fashion. Try to identify and solve an existing problem which can make society a better place. Do thorough research using the methodologies taught to you. MBA helps you think structurally and that will be your biggest contributor to success of your startup.
