Hawking Radiation: Impact on the Mass of Black Holes

Hawking radiation is a theoretical prediction proposed by physicist Stephen Hawking in 1974, suggesting that black holes are not entirely black but emit radiation due to quantum effects near the event horizon. This phenomenon has significant implications for the mass and lifespan of black holes, as it implies that they can slowly lose mass and eventually evaporate over time. Furthermore, Hawking radiation has sparked intense debate among physicists regarding the ultimate fate of black holes and the potential resolution to the information paradox.
